Nine-Ten Restaurant

Where Every Celebration Shines

Nestled inside the historic Grande Colonial Hotel, NINE-TEN has long been one of San Diego's most acclaimed dining destinations. Since 2001, Executive Chef Jason Knibb has led the kitchen with his award-winning take on California cuisine: Refined yet approachable, seasonal, and always inspired by the best local ingredients. Alongside Pastry Chef Jose Alonzo III, whose Half-Baked Chocolate Cake has become a La Jolla legend, NINE-TEN continues to captivate both locals and visitors with unforgettable flavors.

The restaurant's setting is equally special -- a landmark space dating back to 1926, now offering a warm, artful ambiance with indoor and al fresco dining with peaks of the Pacific Ocean. During the holiday season, NINE-TEN also shines as the perfect backdrop for private gatherings. From festive holiday parties to milestone celebrations and corporate dinners, the restaurant offers three private dining spaces, all complemented by Chef Knibb's culinary artistry, Sommelier Chris Russo's expert wine pairings, and the team's polished, personalized service.

Honored by the California MICHELIN Guide, NINE-TEN delivers more than just a meal. It creates lasting memories for holiday occasions and other private events of any description. Whether planning an intimate gathering for 10, an office soirée for 30, or an elaborate fête for 75 of your closest friends, the experience is elevated yet never pretentious, making NINE-TEN the ideal place to toast the season.
