FEATURED AGAVE FLIGHT: MIAHUATLÁN

$61/41 LUCKY HOUR

In a spirit category as terroir driven as Mezcal, the official Denomination of Origin does little to differentiate regional diversity and production heritage. Drawing comparison to the world of wine, France alone is home to over 360 appellations, each representing unique geographic and cultural features. While no such demarcation exists (yet) within Mezcal-producing states, certain communities have such longstanding and distinct distillation traditions that perhaps its best to disregard artificial boundaries and allow the spirits to tell their own story of time and place.

One such area, Miahuatlán, is situated at the southern tip of Oaxaca's central valleys against the Sierra Madre del Sur mountains. Renowned for its rich agricultural and culinary traditions which have been maintained across generations, the region has preserved its reputation for producing some of Mexico's finest spirits. Miahuatlán boasts extreme agave biodiversity as well as distillation technology rarely seen elsewhere: the refrescadera. Though similar in appearance to a copper alembic, refrescaderas are equipped with a stainless steel cylinder through which cold water circulates to rapidly chill and condense alcoholic vapors. This cycle from vapor to liquid to vapor acts as a micro-distillation, gradually increasing alcoholic concentration and purity to yield a lighter, more aromatic expression of mezcal.

SOTOL Y PALMILLA

Hailing from the north, Sotol (Chihuahua, Coahuila, and Durango) and Palmilla (Sonora) are made using the same, traditional techniques seen in mezcal production. Though similar in taste, these distillates do not fall into the category of “agave” as they're distilled from Dasyllirion, a separate genus within the Asparagaceae family. In flavor, these expressions are grassy, with notes of earthy root vegetable and wet stone.

LECHUGUILLA

In addition to Sotol, northern Mexico is home to various endemic species of agave which are utilized in the production of Lechuguilla. Though made in similar fashion to mezcal, the dynamic terroir of northern Mexico—ranging from mountain forests to the Chihuahan desert—offers a tasting experience that is inherently Norteño.

Cumbrita de la Sierra	Lechuguilla	Dolores Gonzales	19
Cumbrita de la Sierra	Lechuguilla y Sotol	Dolores Gonzales	19

RAICILLA

Produced within western Jalisco and one municipality in the state of Nayarit, where by law a spirit cannot be bottled and sold as “Mezcal”. Though made in similar fashion to other mezcals, higher altitude results in cooler temperatures that slow the fermentation process. While an average fermentation lasts from several days to a week, fermentation for Raicilla can take up to 30 days! The resulting spirit tends to have funky, sour, and lactic character: think overripe papaya, blue cheese, and brine!

BACANORA

Produced in the state of Sonora from wild agave Pacifica (A. angustifolia), a species endemic to the region's mountainous terrain. The spirit was banned in 1915, but clandestine operations kept the tradition of distillation alive until the category was granted its own Denomination of Origin in 2005. Bacanora tends to be less smoke-forward than other mezcals with green vegetal flavors and black pepper.
