In the southern Oaxacan regions of Ejutla and Miahuatlán some mezcal producers have adopted a modified copper still referred to as a refrescadera. Though similar in appearance to the traditional alembic, refrescaderas are equipped with a stainless steel cylinder through which cold water circulates, rapidly chilling and condensing alcoholic vapors. This cycle from vapor to liquid to vapor acts as a micro-distillation, gradually increasing alcoholic concentration and purity to yield a lighter, more botanical expression of mezcal.

SOTOL Y PALMILLA

Hailing from the north, Sotol (Chihuahua, Coahuila, and Durango) and Palmilla (Sonora) are made using the same, traditional techniques seen in mezcal production. Though similar in taste, these distillates do not fall into the category of “agave” as they're distilled from Dasyliirion, a separate genus within the Asparagaceae family. In flavor, these expressions are grassy, with notes of earthy root vegetable and wet stone.

LECHUGUILLA

In addition to Sotol, northern Mexico is home to various endemic species of agave which are utilized in the production of Lechuguilla. Though made in similar fashion to mezcal, the dynamic terroir of northern Mexico—ranging from mountain forests to the Chihuahan desert—offers a tasting experience that is inherently Norteño.

Pal'alma "Sonora"	bovicornuta	Fidel Lagarda	18
-------------------	-------------	---------------	----

RAICILLA

Produced within western Jalisco and one municipality in the state of Nayarit, where by law a spirit cannot be bottled and sold as “Mezcal”. Though made in similar fashion to other mezcals, higher altitude results in cooler temperatures that slow the fermentation process. While an average fermentation lasts from several days to a week, fermentation for Raicilla can take up to 30 days! The resulting spirit tends to have funky, sour, and lactic character: think overripe papaya, blue cheese, and brine!

BACANORA

Produced in the state of Sonora from wild agave Pacifica (A. angustifolia), a species endemic to the region’s mountainous terrain. The spirit was banned in 1915, but clandestine operations kept the tradition of distillation alive until the category was granted its own Denomination of Origin in 2005. Bacanora tends to be less smoke-forward than other mezcals with green vegetal flavors and black pepper.
