THE NEW YORK TIMES

"He Admired Her 'Grit and Grace.' She Was Struck by His Kindness."

"Ms. Scalesse and Mr. Nguyen were married June 2 at Rule of Thirds, a Japanese restaurant and event space in Brooklyn, in front of 181 guests...Their mocktail hour included a ramen bar as a nod to their first date."

THE CUT

"A Wedding for the Girls and the Gays With an after-party at a queer rave in a Bushwick warehouse"

"Kayla: Rule of Thirds was the first venue we saw in person. We had eaten at the restaurant years before we knew they did events, and we knew the food would be fantastic.

Hayley: It's Japanese-inspired modern cuisine, a restaurant on one side and a wedding venue on the other. We had a short list of venues mostly in Brooklyn, and it was the prettiest one.

Kayla: It's very open and full of air and light, and they have tons of beautiful greenery throughout. The natural materials and fibers make it super inviting and comforting. When we saw the space in person, it just clicked. They had a good date available, and we made the decision that day."

REVIEWS

"We hosted our 275 person wedding here in April. It was a better venue than we could have imagined. Service was incredible even with that large number of people. The food and drinks were excellent, and the tasting for it was an event in itself. The full buy out is such a unique experience. The sake tasting is a MUST. Perfect venue in any weather."

"Rule of Thirds is amazing! It was the perfect venue to have a non-traditional, modern NYC wedding. Our guests loved the food and drinks, and the team was an absolute dream to work with. Highly recommend working with them!"

"We held our wedding at Rule of Thirds and could not have asked for a better experience. Our guests RAVED about the food (the Prime Rib was the VIP) and drinks, superior service and the airy venue space - it was truly perfect."
