OUR STORY

Constructed in 2005, The Vanderbilt was purpose-built to be Staten Island's premier oceanfront event space, offering panoramic views of the Atlantic Ocean, the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge, and the Manhattan skyline. Nestled along what is now Father Capodanno Boulevard, the venue occupies a truly iconic stretch of the South Beach boardwalk.

Before The Vanderbilt was built, the location already had its first moment in the spotlight. In late 2001, the boardwalk became a filming location for the hit romantic comedy How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days. In one of the movie's most memorable scenes, Matthew McConaughey teaches Kate Hudson how to ride a motorcycle along the beachfront, right on the future site of The Vanderbilt.

Originally called Seaside Boulevard, the roadway adjacent to the beach was renamed in 1976 in honor of Father Vincent R. Capodanno, a Staten Island-born U.S. Navy chaplain who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for his heroic actions during the Vietnam War. Renaming the road served as a tribute to his legacy, a meaningful reminder that this stretch of coast holds both historical and emotional significance for the Staten Island community.
